Hot Dog Fights.

(By United Press)
LONDON—Torpedoes loosed by British torpedo planes crashed into Germany's crack heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen during the night in a savage fight between a British plane fleet and a German naval and aerial force off the Norway coast, the air ministry asserted today.

Four destroyers escorting the Prinz Eugen were raised by cannon fire from four types of British planes which attacked the ships. Five German Messerschmitt-109 and nine British planes were downed in a series of ferocious dog fights.

Searched by bomb hits when it made the daring run with the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau past the English channel coast from Brest to the North Sea, the 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen had gone to Trondheim, on the southwest Norway coast.

There, while guarding against a British invasion and awaiting a chance to attack the vital Allied northern supply route to Russia, it had been damaged by a British submarine torpedo.

Apparently, the air ministry said, it was on its way to a dock yard in Germany for repairs when British reconnaissance planes sighted it yesterday, steaming southward along the coast with its escort of destroyers and fighter planes.

A flash to the British coastal command sent a fleet of Beauforts, Hudsons, Blenheim and four Beaufighters to attack the German formation, with orders to center on the Prinz Eugen.

The German fighters raced to the rescue but the British planes fought their way in through the desperate gunfire of the Prinz Eugen and its destroyers, and while dozens of dog fights proceeded above, the Beaufights, according to preliminary air ministry reports, succeeded in putting torpedoes into it.

The German high command, in its version, said that "in the northern North Sea, strong British air formations attacked the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Sunday Thumbs Up
Edition Popular,
All Editions Sold

The Sunday "Thumbs Up" edition of The News-Journal, which featured hundreds of photographs and word sketches on Mansfielders in the armed services, was a sell-out within a few hours after it hit the newsstands Sunday.

Extra demand for the edition quickly absorbed the hundreds of additional copies printed. Scores of families purchased extra copies to send to their sons in service.

The edition attracted wide attention, and in thousands of homes members of families divided up the four sections of the paper to look for pictures and stories about relatives or friends in uniform. There was some disappointment at omissions of photographs, but all pictures received were published except those which were not useable due to being too small or indistinct.

Those whose pictures could not be used may send in better photographs when available, for use in the regular "Our Neighbors in the Services" column in the regular Sunday editions of The News-Journal.

Photographs sent in for Sunday's special edition may be picked up at The News-Journal business office after Tuesday.

We Can Win If We Go 'All Out'--That's Consensus of U. S. Correspondents Just Released From Axis Countries

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
(United Press Foreign Editor)
MEMORANDUM TO AMERICANS:
The returns are in now from behind the enemy lines. They tell the story of what has happened to the people of Germany and Italy since Pearl Harbor and they show part of the design for licking the Axis.

These returns were brought out of a Hitler-ridden Europe by American newspaper correspondents who for years reported the deadly prelude to this war. They risked their lives to tell you of its opening years and spent five months in Axis internment camps after we got in. They are men and women who were there when it happened and knew what it meant.

The thousands of words that have come

Since their arrival in Lisbon, United Press correspondents who had been interned in Germany and Italy, have been filing dispatches on conditions inside the Axis. Thousands of words of their stories have crossed the desk of Joe Alex Morris, foreign editor of the United Press. From these dispatches, Morris has prepared this summary which gives in an informal, letter-from-home style, the latest information about life in Germany and Italy.

From these correspondents since they reached Lisbon as participants in the exchange of diplomatic and other internees emphasize their confidence that the Axis can be broken and defeated if America and the Allies will go all out. The common people of Italy are sick of the war; the Germans are under an increasingly severe strain; the conquered peoples of Europe are facing firing squads day after day for refusing cooperation with the new order.

But don't get the idea that it is going to be a push-over. These American correspondents say there is plenty of fight and power in the Axis war machine and that it is now or never for Hitler; victory at any price in 1942.

That's why Hitler is now throwing everything he can muster—including 3,000,000 men on the eastern front—into an attempt to crush the Red army and to cut the American-British supply line to the Soviet union. The Nazis may have as many as 300 U-boats in the Atlantic now.

It is American war production that pushed Hitler into this corner and, if it comes up to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Russian Drive Closes In On Vital Kharkov

Red Offensive Reported Surging Ahead On 100-Mile Front; Soviets On Kerch Peninsula Break Out Of Encircling Trap.

BULLETIN
MOSCOW—(UP)—A Russian army estimated at nearly 1,000,000 men stormed through blazing villages on the approaches to Kharkov today after annihilating suicide squads of German paratroops and infantry reserves rushed into battle aboard trailers drawn by Nazi tanks.

(By International News Service)
MOSCOW—With suicide squads of Nazi paratroops being cut down behind the lines even before their feet touch the ground, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's attack against Kharkov surged forward today along an estimated 100-mile front. Gains of 37 miles were recorded.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said that the Germans were resorting to desperate use of paratroops in an effort to cut the Soviet lines but that all attempts had failed. Three separate parachute units, one of 130 men, another of 50 and a third of 30 were machine-gunned in the skies or cut down with sabres on the ground.

(Editor's note: A Stockholm report told of a Soviet counter-drive on the Kerch peninsula by which the Russians succeeded in breaking out of a German encirclement. Reuter heard from somewhere on the German frontier that the Nazis had concentrated 2,000 dive-bombers for the Kerch battle.)

Latest announcement said that additional villages on the Kharkov front are being liberated "constantly" as Timoshenko's huge mechanized force advanced over roads strewn with burnt-out Nazi tanks and German dead.

The Germans, a Moscow broadcaster said, are suffering "enormous losses." Three Soviet units alone accounted for 91 German tanks.

The retreating Germans are leaving death and desolation behind them, destroying towns and villages as they run to the rear. Masses of tanks have been flung into battle without checking the Soviet offensive, it was stated.

With the Red air force maintaining unchallenged mastery of the skies over Kharkov, the Russians steadily are moving forward along the ground.

The Germans rushed tank reinforcements to one sector 15 times yesterday, replacing their losses after each attack and finally losing 43 tanks in all.

Recording gains of up to 37 miles since the push against Kharkov began, one salient of the Soviet armies drove far to the southwest in the direction of Krasnograd in an apparent flanking movement to effect encirclement of the city.

Throughout last night Soviet forces fought offensive actions all along the Kharkov front, the Red army noon communique said.

Mass Launching of Liberty Ships Set for May 22.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Thirty cargo ships will slide down the ways May 22 in the greatest mass launching of merchant ships since the United States began construction of the victory fleet.

The maritime commission announced today that the vessels would be launched on National Maritime day on all coasts and the Great Lakes. The large number of launchings is possible because of speeding up of production. Twenty-five other vessels already have been launched this month.

The May 22 launchings will be more than double those of Liberty Fleet day, Sept. 27, 1941, when 14 ships slid into the sea. That day marked the beginning of the one-day launching schedule.

Sikorsky Visits City In Strange Craft He Built

Only Those Who Saw It Know What Peculiar Ship Looked Like.

Several hundred persons, afoot and in their cars, were idle watching the ordinary course of activities at municipal airport shortly before noon yesterday when something unusual happened.

A peculiar-looking ship approached the field, and the spectators were amazed.

For the strange craft, although it bore U. S. army air corps insignia, was entirely unlike any other of the ultra-modern service craft which occasionally drop in at the airport. What it looked like is known only to those Mansfielders who saw it, for censorship forbids publication of a description.

The excitement increased when out of the plane stepped a little man who turned out to be none other than Igor Ivan Sikorsky, internationally-known aviation designer and builder. With him was his pilot, C. L. Morris.

Sikorsky was greeted by Airport Manager J. R. Harrington and by officials of the civil air patrol. Polished and courteous, with a ready smile and military bearing, he chatted with the airport group for about an hour. He proved to be conversational about everything except his new ship, which has (Continued on Page 14, Col. 8)

PRICE CEILING GOES ON RETAIL ITEMS TODAY

Washington Estimates Cost of Living Drops One and a Half Per Cent.

Mansfield's cost of living was frozen "tighter than a drum" at one minute past midnight last night as the most rigid price control in the history of the United States became effective over nearly everything persons eat, wear or use.

A sweeping governmental order pegging prices of approximately 30,000 items vital to everyday life to the highest mark they reached in March reduced the cost of living approximately one and one-half per cent, retail experts in Washington estimated.

Mansfield housewives, going into retail stores to shop this morning found prices marked on practically all commodities in the stores. In some cases, the prices were the highest charged during March but most stores had articles marked with prices lower than the maximum allowed. The OPA "ceiling" establishes maximums but allows merchants to lower their prices to compete with each other.

Store-owners have been working frantically for the past two weeks to find what their highest prices were during March and to mark prices on all "cost-of-living" articles. Last week, control of wholesale prices went into effect. On July 1, the final touches will be placed on the price ceiling when restrictions go on prices charged for retail services.

"The big thing for everyone to remember is that prices under the ceiling are going no higher," said (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Lew Ayres Leaves 'C.O.' Camp For Induction Center.

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—(AP)—Lew Ayres, the war-hating Hollywood film actor who sacrificed his career, at least temporarily, for his principles, came out of a conscientious objectors' camp today to be inducted into the army.

The actor, who rose to prominence as a war-battered soldier in "All Quiet on the Western Front," said his hatred of arms-bearing was unchanged.

He was entering the army, he said, because he had been assured he would be assigned to medical duty, for which he has taken training in civilian courses.

Inter-City Traffic On East Coast Hit By Gas Rationing

(By United Press)
More persons in eastern cities stayed home yesterday than on any comparably warm spring Sunday in a long time, according to unofficial estimates.

All the large metropolitan areas in the east reported that Sunday automobile traffic was at least 50 per cent below normal. Most noticeable decrease was in the volume of traffic between cities. Some strategic highways were reported "relatively empty."

Inter-city traffic in New England dropped sharply although police said there was little noticeable change in urban traffic. Rain and gasoline rationing shared responsibility in that area.

Australian Editor Says He Is Over-Confident.

MELBOURNE, Australia.—(AP)—Sir Keith Murdoch, managing director of the Melbourne Herald, charged editorially today that President Roosevelt and Washington were guilty along with Britain of viewing the Pacific war outlook with unwarranted over-confidence.

He cited as an example, the president's statement in an April speech that "there is good reason to believe the Japanese southward advance has been checked."

This declaration, Murdoch said, was "only symptomatic of optimism that has, obstinately colored Washington thinking about the western Pacific." He maintained that both official and service views abroad had been "disastrously over-confident from the first."

BROTHER, SISTER KILLED AS TRAIN HITS TRACTOR

Third Youth Leaps Before Engine Strikes in Mishap Near Shelby.

A Sharon township brother and sister, riding on their father's tractor, were killed instantly yesterday by a speeding Big Four passenger train at the Vernon Junction crossing three miles south of Shelby. The Ohio death toll for the week-end was 11.

The victims were Donald and Lucille Karl, 19 and 17 years old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karl, who live on a farm about a half-mile from the scene of the tragedy.

Stephan Bilka, 18, Shelby, who was riding with the couple on the tractor, escaped injury when he jumped from the tractor fender seconds before the train thundered down on the trio. The accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. at the crossing on State Route 61.

It was the first double-tragedy on Richland county highways since last December. The deaths were the fifth and sixth of the year in county traffic as compared with 14 at this time last year.

The body of the girl was thrown nearly 200 feet from the crossing while her brother's body was found 50 feet away. The train, bound for Cleveland, sheared off (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

PLANE MISSING

Army Discloses Ship Fails to Return From Sub Hunt.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Loss of an A-29 medium army bomber on a submarine bombing mission with five crewmen was announced today by the air corps eastern defense command.

The announcement said the plane has been missing since it left on the bombing mission on Sunday, May 10, and has been "officially declared lost."

"Aircraft parties combed the sea for days without success" in an effort to find a trace of the bomber, the announcement added. Relatives of the missing men have been notified.

Several Thousand See New Draftee Contingent Leave

Several thousand persons, made up largely of residents of Richland county outside of Mansfield, but including a number from the city, participated in this morning's send-off for another group of selectees, departing for an army induction center.

The contingent, made up entirely of men from Draft Board 3, filled two buses which drew up on Diamond street in front of the courthouse. The send-off was the third staged in the city within six days.

The Mansfield Senior high school band provided music for the occasion. It was the fifth time the high school band had played for a send-off, out of the nine such demonstrations since the practice was inaugurated on March 24.

reged without let-up, according to the official announcement.
There was "strenuous fighting" in the neighborhood of the port of Kerch, on the eastern tip of the Crimean peninsula, in the Crimea, the Russians said.
A special communique issued by the Red army acknowledged heavy counter-attacks by large formations of German tank and armored forces after the Russians had broken through the Nazis' first line of defense but declared that the enemy had been repulsed and Soviet forces were continuing to advance.
Some 12,000 German officers and soldiers, the communique said, have been killed so far in the campaign to recapture Kharkov. Already more than 300 inhabited localities have been retaken on the Kharkov front.

Timoshenko's assault was said to have resulted in the capture of 25 tanks, 182 trench mortars, 379 machine guns and 365 field pieces, with about 1,200 Nazi troops taken prisoner.
German equipment destroyed, it was said, included 400 tanks, 210 guns, about 700 vehicles and 149 airplanes.

The Russians reported that units of the famed Cossack cavalry were thrown into the Kharkov battle behind strong armored units "to keep the Germans moving."
Recapture of a strategic village, designated only as "M" but believed to be Merefa, 20 miles south of Kharkov, was announced by the Russians. The town was captured after an hour and a half of fierce street fighting. A large food and ammunition supply dump which the Nazis did not have time to destroy was captured.

The battered Nazi forces were reportedly retreating in disorder as the Russian forces continue to smash through the elaborate system of anti-tank obstacles and mine fields established by the Germans. Almost all of the 375th Nazi regiment was said to have been annihilated on one sector.
The Nazis were reported, however, to be rushing in tanks in groups of 30 to 40 on some sectors in desperate efforts to stem the Russian onslaught.

Behind the German lines Soviet planes dropped leaflets declaring that Nazi losses from December through April totaled 1,100,000, with 800,000 killed and 300,000 either wounded or taken prisoner.

Arrest Anti-Nazis In Holland

(By United Press)
German occupation authorities have arrested more than 2,000 army officers and 460 civic leaders in Holland in apparent fear of a general uprising, it was disclosed today.

The German radio said the army officers had been ordered back to prison camps because members of the Dutch army released after the German occupation had participated "to steadily growing extent" in anti-German activities. The civic leaders, a transoceanic news agency broadcast said, have sympathized with "the originators of certain acts directed against the reich."
Radio Orange, the Free Dutch broadcasting station in London, said the arrests "were new signs of growing fear."

'Cover Charges' At This Party $1,000 Per Head

CHICAGO—(UP)—The customers at one of Chicago's swankiest night clubs had a million and a quarter dollars worth of fun last night, and so did Uncle Sam.
The money represented the amount a select group of 689 men and women paid out for the purchase of government war bonds. In return, the management picked up their checks and had the top ranking stage and screen stars put on a show for their entertainment.

To gain entrance into the club (Chez Paree) for the free dinner and show, there was only one demand. The committee of business executives in charge of the party requested that each table of 10 persons buy at least $10,000 (face value) in war bonds.
A group of U. S. treasury officials supervised the sales. The total purchases amounted to $1,252,300. James L. Simpson, Chicago business executive and committee chairman, said the amount probably was the largest sale in a single night at any gathering.

the front end of the tractor and scattered pieces of it for a quarter of a mile along the tracks.

Coroner L. B. McCullough said the girl's neck was broken and her chest was crushed. The boy's head was crushed and his body was mangled. The bodies were taken to the Dye Funeral home in Shelby.

John Ledgett, retired railroad engineer who witnessed the tragedy, said the signal flashers were working when Donald drove the tractor onto the tracks. The tractor appeared to stall in front of the train and when the locomotive struck it, pieces of metal flew high into the air, Ledgett said.
Investigating officers said the youth may have been blinded by the sun as he drove the tractor westward toward Vernon Junction and failed to see the warning signals. The noise of the tractor probably prevented the young people from hearing the approaching train, officers added. The crossing is in open country, permitting a clear view both ways.

Deputy Sheriff G. C. Humphrey said the Karl youth was taking the tractor to Vernon Junction to get some gasoline. His sister and the Bilka youth went along for the ride.
Charles Bronson, Cleveland, engineer on the passenger train, stopped the train a considerable distance from the crossing after the crash. The locomotive was not believed damaged and the train was held up only a short time.

The Karl youth was employed at the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby. His sister lived at home. Donald was born Dec. 6, 1922, in Crawford and his sister was born Jan. 27, 1925, in the same county. Both were members of the Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic church.

Double funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at the church of which they were members. Rev. Michael McFadden, pastor of the church, will officiate. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Surviving, besides the parents, are three brothers, Charles of near Shelby, Harold at home, and Arthur in the army in Florida, and three sisters, Mrs. John Studer of Mansfield, Mrs. Clyde Hiler of North Auburn, and Miss Esther Karl, at home.

No other persons were reported killed or injured in the Mansfield area over the week-end. Traffic in other sections of Ohio, however, claimed at least nine lives, including four others in mishaps involving trains. They were Walter Sanning, 28, and Earl Osterbrook, 21, at Cincinnati; O. C. Burris, 69, former London, O., postmaster, and George Kovitch, 50, at Akron.

After Train Killed Two On Tractor

Here's all that was left of a tractor after a fast Big Four passenger train struck it late yesterday at Vernon Junction, killing Donald Karl, 19, and his sister, Lucille, 17. Ironically, the seat and fender on which the victims were riding were about the only parts of the tractor that were not damaged. Stephan Bilka, 18, of Shelby, riding on the tractor with the brother and sister, escaped injury by jumping as the train bore down on the tractor. The young victims of the tragedy were children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karl who live on a farm a short distance from the accident scene. This picture was taken by Ralph Allwine, Shelby photographer, who arrived soon after the accident.

REPORTERS TELL HOW AXIS NATIONS STAND

We Must Go 'All Out' to Win,
Say U. S. Correspondents,
Just Released.

expectations, can keep him there unless he breaks the Russians this summer. That's about as far as these correspondents can go: if Hitler loses in Russia in the next few months the tide will turn decisively against him. If he wins, nobody can foresee fully the dangers that unlimited Nazi resources would create.
The highlights of the report from United Press correspondents are:

AXIS WAR STRENGTH
Hitler has been able to muster an estimated 12,000,000 men into the armed services and auxiliaries, of which some 210 out of 300 divisions of troops are on the Russian front. About 35 to 42 divisions are required to garrison occupied territories, fighting guerrillas in central Europe and guarding against an Allied invasion. This probably is a peak for the Axis. If it fails to crack the Red army this summer, experts doubt that such striking-power can ever be mobilized by the enemy again.

PRODUCTION
Germany is turning out between 1,100 and 2,500 airplanes a month and 18 to 25 submarines, but the rate is slipping downward. Hitler may have 35,000 planes available but many are out-dated. He has plenty of war materials for the time being, but oil, cotton, wool and other vital materials are running short in Italy and interfering with his effort to make that country a main workshop of the Axis war machine. Hitler must get Russian resources soon or suffer crippling shortages of raw materials.

LOSSES
The Germans suffered probably 2,500,000 casualties in Russia, including 750,000 killed. Two and three members of many families have been killed.

LABOR
There is an acute shortage of labor, but the Nazis expect to have 4,000,000 foreign workers in war factories this year in addition to 1,600,000 prisoners. Women and children are also being crowded into factories, but there is a shortage of farm workers for spring planting.

TRANSPORTATION
Deterioration of train service due to neglect and shortage of materials is increasing despite seizure of 250,000 freight cars and 3,000 locomotives in France. This is one of the most acute war problems and is intensifying.

FOOD
The Germans probably eat better than any other people in Europe, but there have been new and drastic cuts in allotments this year and it was believed that another cut will come this summer, reducing the 1942 meat ration to the equivalent of about five hamburgers per person per week. The fat ration has been cut to less than half a pound weekly and potatoes to five pounds.

LOOT
Germany has looted the conquered areas of Europe of about $36,000,000 in cash and goods, which is enough to pay for Hitler's seven years of re-armament. The Nazis also have executed almost 400,000 persons, most of them in Russia, in carrying out their program of: "Be my brother, or I'll smash your head!" It is estimated that 87,500 were executed in Poland, 5,000 in Yugoslavia, 3,000 in Czechoslovakia, 1,500 in France and Belgium and 300 in Holland.

war and Mussolini is kept in power largely because of the threat of German occupation of Italy. German morale is definitely not at the breaking point but has suffered serious blows due to the reverses in Russia and the declaration of war against the United States, which was unpopular in both Italy and the Reich. The Nazis are still firmly in power in Germany and likely to be ousted only if they suffer a great military defeat. Churches in Germany are crowded despite the Nazis efforts to discredit religious organizations.

OUTLOOK
Hitler still has a firm grip on Germany and Europe and with the aid of stronger propaganda shots in the arms, is intensifying the Axis war effort in hope of winning this summer before the strain becomes unbearable and before American productive power is fully effective. Only total war effort can beat him. No others need apply.
P. S.—The correspondents who made this report are clamoring to get back to the war fronts—on the other side of the line this time.

PRICE CEILING GOES ON TODAY

Washington Estimates Cost of Living Drops One and a Half Per Cent.

Leon Henderson, director of the office of price administration. "The retail price will be held—there will be no increase in the general level."

Even as retail price control went into effect, however, price administration officials prepared to deal with countless appeals from many retailers who will find operations almost impossible under the "ceilings."

Contending that in many instances their price levels lagged some 10 per cent behind whole sale replacement costs, retailers hoped for prompt action in regard to "gross inequities" which Henderson pledged would be readjusted.

OPA representatives indicated, however, that readjustments would be made at the wholesale and manufacturing level and not in retail ceilings.

On some 170 "cost-of-living" commodities, retailers will be required to post the ceiling prices where the customers can see them. The OPA announced that posting of ceiling prices in "booklet form, or in layers of lists" will not be acceptable.

All commodities sold at retail, except only those specifically excluded in the regulation, are price-controlled. Most important exemptions are the following food products:

Butter and cheese; evaporated, condensed and other canned milk products, poultry and eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables (except bananas), flour, mutton and lamb, fresh fish, seafood and game; nuts, dried prunes, and dry beans. Other exemptions among articles of common use sold in retail stores are:

Living animals, birds and fowl; books, magazines, newspapers and periodicals; used automobiles; stamps, coins, precious stones (but not jewelry, which is covered); antiques; knotted oriental rugs; paintings, etchings, sculptures and other objects of art.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Whenever I hear about anybody having a big family I think of Dad and Ma Hoskins. The Hoskins' had thirteen children.

They weren't a bad bunch of kids, by and large—but it seemed one or the other of them would always be having a fuss with the neighbors, or would break a window playing baseball, or some other kid trick. Kept Dad and Ma mighty busy all the time.

One day Dad got a bright idea. He called the whole family together for a special meeting at the dinner table.

He told them he was tired of checking up on them all the time. He said he thought they were old enough now to check up on themselves. The older children would watch the younger ones. They would have meetings every so often and hand out rewards or punishments.

Well, it was a crazy idea but the kids liked it and they started behaving better than they ever had before. The idea worked and Dad finally did get a little time for himself.

I mention this story about Dad Hoskins because it's something like what I understand the beer industry is doing to regulate itself.

As I see it, most of the beer industry behaves itself perfectly all right... but every now and then, I guess, a retailer comes along who runs a place that isn't up to scratch... sort of like a wayward kid.

So like Dad Hoskins' family, the brewers and beer distributors have united together in an industry self-regulation program to help the proper authorities "clean up or close up" offending retail places.

The brewers, who want to protect beer's good name, cooperate wisely with the authorities who enforce the laws.

From where I sit, that's a fine thing for the brewers to do... particularly when you realize that after all they're really not responsible for retailing conditions.

LONDON—(INS)—Nazi-held airdromes in occupied Holland were blasted early today by Boston (Douglas) bombers piloted by Canadian fliers, the air ministry announced.

One of the heaviest aerial assaults of the war was conducted against the occupied coast of France by other RAF bombers. Lashing out at midnight across the English Channel the RAF planes pounded targets on the continent for two hours.

'INEVITABLE'

That's George's Attitude on Wage Control Need.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Chairman Walter R. George, (D., Ga.), of the senate finance committee today indicated belief that eventually some form of wage control would be necessary to prevent inflation.

"The success of the administration's program to hold down the cost of living through price ceilings will be determined within the next 60 or 90 days," he said in an interview. "If it does not work out then congress will have to face the problem of wage control or else face spiraling prices."

"Demands for wage increases are undoubtedly going on and will continue even if the present program succeeds in stabilizing the cost of living. There is always the argument that living costs may shoot up in the future."

THE WAR TODAY

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is being written in his absence for a fortnight by Fred Vander-schmidt.)

Out of the black night which lies over Germany and Italy come the first adequate and entirely dependable analyses of enemy morale since the Axis declaration of war on the United States. The stories of the American correspondents who have been interned in the Third Reich and in that German province which lies south of the Brenner Pass.

Walls did not a prison make for these reporters, for even with their limited contacts with their keepers, they were able to keep a sensitive finger on the pulse of the peoples with whom they had worked.

Their reports, now reaching Americans from neutral Portugal, are of the utmost importance to every United States citizen. They are required reading for anyone who wants to get a clear picture of the nature and magnitude of our own task in winning the victory.

These stories are excellent substitutes for wishful thinkers, for they are careful to point out the folly of expecting riot and rebellion in nations where the gestapo pistol is close to every head.

Paradoxically the stories are powerful arguments for the speedy creation of a fighting front in Western Europe, for they make it very plain that the dry rot of sullen apathy and hopelessness among the German and Italian people is creeping steadily into the Axis armed forces whose task it will be to combat Allied invasion of the continent.

THREE KILLED, 2 HURT IN NEW MINE EXPLOSION

Bodies Recovered 500 Feet From Entrance, 15 Others Escape Blast.

(By United Press)

BENWOOD, W. Va.—An explosion in the shaft mine of the Hitchman Coal and Coke company killed three miners and injured two critically today.

The other men, part of a force of 15 sent into the mine last night to clean up a rock and slate fall, escaped, making their way to safety past the scene of the blast, which occurred about 500 feet from the sloping entrance to the workings.

The dead were: Hardy Park, Benwood, and Mike Polus and John Mojzer, both of McMechen, W. Va.

In critical condition at Ohio Valley General hospital, Wheeling, were Albert Valemblis, 30, and Dan Polus, 22, both of McMechen.

Company officials said the ten who escaped were not aware that an explosion had occurred until they came out of the mine after the power had failed. They were working about two miles inside the mine and were saved by a system of safety doors which closes off the mine into sections.

The company recently discontinued the night shift at the workings. The explosion was the second within a week in the West Virginia soft coal fields. Fifty-six men were killed in a blast last Tuesday at the Christopher Coal company No. 3 mine at Osage, W. Va., near Morgantown.

Apparently expending its force outward, the blast caused "considerable damage" to mine property outside the entrance. A power line near the mine was wrecked, plunging the area into darkness. Witnesses reported that a "sheet of flame" shot from the pit a few seconds after the explosion.

The blast at 2 a. m. was believed to have been touched off by a short circuit apparently caused when a timber loosed by one of the workmen fell across a trolley wire carrying power to a conveyor belt used to move coal from the mine.

When the timber fell it apparently stirred up a cloud of coal dust which was set off by the electric arc.

The dead were found near the immediate scene of the blast, apparently killed outright.

Ship Yard Employees to Get Increase Ranging From 6 to 10 Per Cent.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Through their representatives, management and labor in the nation's shipyards were committed today to a new wage schedule calling for pay increases averaging six to 10 per cent, to be paid in war bonds, and designed to avert production interruptions and migration of labor.

The program, representing a compromise on wage boosts sought which would have averaged 13 to 16 per cent in many cases, evolved from the 21-day national shipbuilding conference.

Affecting more than half a million workers in all major shipyards now throbbing with war work, the agreement was reached in response to a personal appeal by President Roosevelt and to the suggestion of Price Administrator Leon Henderson that wages might be frozen.

Subject to formal approval by labor's rank and file and all companies, the agreement will increase wages an average of eight cents an hour and will establish a uniform rate of $1.20 an hour for skilled mechanics throughout the industry.

This uniformity of pay was taken in an effort to avoid competition between shipworkers, large labor migrations and resultant production delays.

In an anti-inflation measure, the companies and CIO and AFL unions agreed that the wage increases, expected to total $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 this year, will be paid in war bonds, not to be cashed except for "extreme necessity."

A cross-country training flight presented an opportunity for Charles Bookwalter, Mansfielder now in Pan-American Airways' ferry command school near Boston to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bookwalter, over the weekend. Bookwalter, one of the first graduates in the Civilian Pilot Training course at Mansfield airport, has been in the school for three months. Upon completion, he will be one of the pilots to fly bombers from the United States to their service posts abroad. He was picked up at Municipal airport today for the return flight to Boston by a 10-passenger Lockheed transport plane of the North-east Airlines, in which the training flight was made. The ship had been at Columbus airport for the week-end.

It's not a very comfortable feeling to know that something else is occupying your coat with you, especially when you don't know what the other occupant is. That's the way Joseph D. Mathys, barber in the Mansfield-Leland hotel shop, felt about it yesterday. Mathys placed his coat on the ground while he looked for mushrooms. When he put it on again, something struck him in the back of the neck. He reached back but felt nothing. Then it happened again. Thinking that a snake might have crawled into the coat, Mathys pulled it off again in a hurry and dropped it on the ground. Closer inspection revealed a small squirrel riding in the lining. Mathys wasn't sure whether he or the squirrel was scared the worst.

Mansfielders lucky enough to have sufficient rubber on their automobile tires to take short scenic drives will find the going treacherous in spots if they ride through Mohican state park. Roads usually kept up by the Civilian Conservation Corps recently withdrawn from the park, were hard hit by last week's rains. In at least a half dozen sections, roads bordering deep ravines have become hazards, which present driving hazards. Rangers in the park have marked the bad spots but at present, there are no repair crews working in the park.

WPB Calls For Intensified Production of All War Weapons.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — United Nations diplomats in Washington today were elated over the American government's plans to abandon some of the long-range war planning in favor of intensified production of weapons immediately with a view to achieving a quicker victory over the Axis.

The war production board's reported decision to cancel virtually all contracts for new war plants which cannot be completed by mid-1943 in order to concentrate all available materials on the production of vital fighting weapons was regarded in diplomatic quarters as one of the most momentous and encouraging developments of the war.

The diplomats believe this action, expected to be formally announced shortly by WPB Chief Nelson, will place the United Nations in a position to take swift advantage of any trouble in which Hitler may find himself in Russia this year.

If the United States concentrates all of its available resources now in turning out ships, planes, tanks and other vital war supplies, the diplomats believe that the United Nations may be able to strike a fatal blow at the European end of the Axis this year should the Soviet armies succeed in forestalling Hitler's efforts to crush them during the coming summer months.

There are few diplomats who are so optimistic to think that Germany can be knocked out of the war completely this year. However, most of them do believe that if Russia is able to continue the sort of fighting that the Soviet armies are carrying on in the Kharkov offensive, it may be possible to topple the German war effort before the end of 1942.

If Hitler is unable to achieve a decisive victory in Russia this summer and is compelled to wage a defensive war there, it is felt that a golden opportunity will present itself to the United States and Great Britain to strike this year in western Europe, Africa and the Mediterranean.

O. S. U. Loses 10 Per Cent Of Staff To Armed Service

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio State university reported today that it had lost about 10 per cent of its teaching staff to military and other government services, but added the loss had been partly offset by a corresponding decline in the student body.

A committee appointed by President Howard L. Bevis now is making a detailed study of the school and its departments to find means of offsetting financial losses brought on by the fall in enrollment. Budget problems likely will not be decided, the report added, until June when officials will know how many students will enter an accelerated program of year-around studies.

The student, too, is facing a money problem, the university said. While the fees remain unchanged, "increase costs to the student will come from higher expense for food, rooms, supplies, and clothing."

Fine Service of Navy Relief

CALL of the Navy Relief Society for contributions of $6,300 from the people of Mansfield and Richland county is one that will bring ready response from many who have become accustomed to giving—and from others to whom this particular humanitarian activity makes special appeal.

Much has been heard, in a nationwide way, about Navy Relief, but not until today has this community been reached by an organized effort to share in the work being done by the national society.

The campaign now in progress is designed to raise $5,000,000 for Navy Relief, with Richland county's quota placed at $6,300. A committee of voluntary workers will carry through the campaign in Mansfield, Shelby, and elsewhere in the county, starting today and continuing until the quota has been reached.

The guiding principle of the Navy Relief Society is that no widow, no orphaned children, no mother or other member of the navy man's family shall suffer hardship if it is within the power of the society to prevent it.

When any member of the navy, either active or retired, is killed in action, reported missing, or dies from any other cause, it is a representative of the Navy Relief Society, as an understanding and sympathetic friend, who immediately visits the home and learns the extent of aid required to relieve distress.

Later, if needed, there is continued help for the navy man's dependents, even to the extent of aiding children to secure an education and giving them a right start in life, by outright grants, regular payments so long as need continues, and by loans without interest.

The total to be raised in this city and county is not large and the purposes for which the money is to be used are so worthy that members of the committee will probably find this task not long or difficult—which will be gratifying, as each of them has many things to do.

Browder's Sentence Commuted

RELEASE of Earl Browder, Communist leader, from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, is such a relatively minor incident in this period of national stress that it will probably not gain the attention it would merit in normal times.

Communist pressure in the United States, in behalf of Browder, has been strong and President Roosevelt's action in commuting the four-sentence to the fourteen months already served was not unexpected—whatever differences of opinion there may be as to justification or advisability.

The White House statement that commutation of sentence "will have a tendency to promote national unity and allay any feeling that may exist in some minds that the unusually long sentence in Browder's case was by way of penalty imposed on him because of his political views" is sufficiently illuminating to require no comment.

Considered as an individual, Browder may be regarded as more of a nuisance than a menace, and whether he is imprisoned or free will probably make little difference in the national war effort, although members of the "Free Earl Browder" organization have contended: "Browder's release would give us the services of a man who has proved his ability to fight Fascism."

The fact that the United States is now associated with Russia in the war against Nazi Germany appears to be construed by Communists in this country to mean an endorsement of Communism, when, in reality, the united effort is merely against a common foe that threatens all nations striving to progress under a form of government which each believes best adapted to the needs of its people.

What has been quite obvious is that Earl Browder, and the small minority that constitutes his adherents, are out of accord with the kind of government operative in the United States. It was as an objector to war in 1917 that Browder was arrested for draft evasion and sentenced to Leavenworth prison. If, as a result of release from prison, he can be helpful in the present war effort, well and good. President Roosevelt seems to think that he can be.

Planning Ahead for New Car

AN INTERESTING sales idea, being considered now in the automobile field, is the ordering of cars for after-war delivery. The orders would be taken and payments made on them currently in the usual way. Then the buyer would have his car coming to him whenever the war ended and manufacture was resumed. It seems like a rather good savings plan, provided the buyers, in their premature orders and payments, don't tie up a lot of money which ought to be going into war bonds.

They would be buying cars largely sight-unseen, because future models may be very different from present ones. And they might be waiting for a long time for delivery. Nevertheless, the thought of an ultra-modern car coming some day, and already paid for, would be pleasant to think about during the deprivation. It would obviously be a good thing for the manufacturers, guaranteeing the resurrection of the industry promptly at the war's end. Similar ideas might be applied also to other products.

Another Tire-Saving Plan

TIRES can be saved, and costs cut. In one large city 4,600 families have just exchanged milk dealers. Under the plan three dairy companies will each concentrate on one section of town instead of duplicating one another's routes. Thousands of miles will be saved.

Other cities can do this. This reform need not be confined to milk dealers.

Benjamin Franklin flying his kite learned something about lightning, but he never thought of putting an engine in it.

Congressmen are assured all the gas they need for campaigning—so there's little likelihood of shorter speeches.

STILL TRYING TO CONCENTRATE

How Real Is Rubber Shortage?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

RUBBER rationing is immaterial to me. I'm one of a very few living Americans who never owned nor drove an automobile. I can use bits of twine in place of elastic bands. And I don't mind clumping around on sole leather heels. So what do I care personally?

Still, I must say that the necessity for rationing that particular kind of gum has puzzled me.

No doubt the war has shut off our East Indian source of supplies of the genuine article. Yet, within my recollection, the whole world's rubber came from the Belgian Congo, on the African west coast. What's become of the Belgian Congo? Maybe it was put out of business by the upper Amazon's competition.

That region already was being tapped on a tremendous scale as far back as several years before World War No. 1. Coming northward up the South American coast in 1921, my boat put in at the Brazilian port of Para (also known as Belem). Para was advertised then as our globe's chief rubber export source—raw gum from up the river. Henry Ford was just starting a huge plantation of the trees. So were other Yankee interests. These cultivated trees ought to be yielding now ad libitum, not to mention wild ones, of which there are vast forests, just waiting to be tapped, free. What's become of all that rubber too?

Not New Questions. Well, I've asked these questions in print hitherto. They're chest-nutty simply as my individual queries.

However, I never considered myself an expert. I merely considered it queer and let it go at that.

The other day, in my mail, though, I ran across a mimeographed release from the recent testimony of Elliot E. Simpson, representing huge commercial rubber interests, before a congressional committee in Washington, and this rubberlie, who doubtless knows what he's talking about, says emphatically in the affirmative, exactly what I've been wondering.

"The president and the American people," testified the expert Rubberman Simpson, on Capitol Hill, "have been sold a gold brick on the fake rubber shortage."

His account is that 800,000 tons of the original and reclaimed stuff are "all that are needed for defense and civilian necessities," and he maintains that that much is "easily available in this hemisphere"—not including the Belgian Congo and the East Indies, but right at hand.

"There's a minimum," he deposed, "of 1,200,000 to 3,000,000 tons of crude rubber in the western hemisphere in mature trees."

The point's been made that we aren't short alone on supplies—that a good many of 'em are to be had in sufficient quantities at their various sources of origin, but that transportation's lacking to deliver 'em where they're needed.

Rubberite Simpson doesn't disregard this item.

"South American rubber," he testified, "can be shuttled to Panama. Central American rubber can be moved by rail and truck, eliminating the need of great numbers of ships."

Simpson "Hushed."

A governmental "husher" was put on Rubberite Simpson's congressional testimony. He even knows that Uncle Sam's publicity bureaus broadcast everything, "to the last syllable, that suits their purposes. But this particular dope didn't fit, just as wholesale rationing was being imposed. The rubber interests had to disseminate it themselves."

Now, I don't guarantee it. I say only that it coincides with certain observations of my own.

Now, how much more of our current regulations are hokey?

Far be it from me to deprecate 'em, but I suspect that a good many of 'em are adopted, not so much because they're wartime essentials as because, in a certain sort of way, the public enjoys 'em. It WANTS some hardships.

Health and Diet

Longevity Influenced By Heredity.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE old question of the relative importance of heredity and environment in relation to longevity and disease will probably never be settled by statistics. It is too complicated a problem and too many elements enter into it for that.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, for instance, has recently published a study from which they conclude that a good environment seems to be of greater weight than long-lived parents in determining the individual's prospect for long life. But it takes a good deal of interpretation of their statistics to work out the conclusion.

Most Important Factor Anybody who has lived as long as I have must be pretty well convinced that longevity in parents is the most important factor in the longevity of individuals. But of course, there are exceptions. I know of a number of families in which I know the parents have lived to a very ripe age, but several of the children have died of entirely intercurrent disease.

For instance, in one such family one child died of pneumonia and one child died of hemorrhage from an ulcer of the stomach. Three others are still alive and look as if they are going to attain the same age as their parents.

The pneumonia and the hemorrhage were simply accidents on the road of life which have no hereditary implications at all. Certainly nobody inherits pneumonia, and it is very doubtful whether ulcer is hereditary.

If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusions entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality

The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per cent below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

Orphanhood has a detrimental and lasting effect on the health of young people. The children in broken families are more poorly housed, fed and clothed and receive less medical attention than other children. More of them are compelled to go to work at young ages and therefore at unskilled jobs.

Conclusions Hard to Accept

It's difficult for me to accept the conclusions of the Metropolitan. I have seen too much to the contrary and when you get away from long lines of statistics and actually see families that you know, you are convinced that heredity is the most important factor in longevity.

The difference between the statistician and a family doctor is the same as that between a man in an airplane, who soars over a community and sees thousands of people from far off, and one who lives in one place and gets to know all the neighbors from the time of birth to the time of death.

The Tennessee Valley Authority, created by congressional act, was approved May 18, 1933. General purpose of the project was to develop the Tennessee river system in the interests of navigation, flood control and national defense and to generate and sell surplus electricity to avoid the waste of water power. Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congress Jumps Into Frying Pan Again From 'X' Card Springboard

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Even Washington, where congressional boondoggling is an old story, was startled when some 300 senators and representatives took "X" rationing cards giving them an unlimited supply of gasoline.

The capital well knows that few members of congress have sufficient "official business" to warrant an "X" rating. Also, after the way the boys got their fingers burned in the attempted crude "bundles for congress" pension grab, it was thought they had learned their lesson—for this session at least.

But it seems they haven't, for the gas grab is only part of the rationing ducking story.

OPA has said nothing about it, but the inside fact is that a number of the congressional statesmen have privately demanded that the drastic tire restrictions be lifted for them so that they can get tires for campaigning purposes.

Further, none of these politics said anything about extending such a concession to their opponents. They want tires for themselves, but their rivals must abide by the regulations without any special favors.

So far OPA has turned a deaf ear to the tire demand.

Note—One reason why "X"

cards were dishd out so freely on Capitol Hill was that a number of congressional wives acted as registrars.

Fast Thinker.

POPULAR pastime at Selective Service is swapping stories about draftees. Here is the latest making the rounds:

A prospective draftee was taking his physical examination and the doctor directed him to "look at the chart on the wall and tell me what numbers you see."

"What wall?" asked the draftee blankly.

After looking him over a few minutes the doctor told the registrars the army couldn't use him. He put on his clothing and departed. But on the way home, he stopped off to see a movie. When the lights went on at intermission, he was startled to find the examining physician seated beside him.

But the draftee was equal to the occasion. Nudging the doctor he asked innocently, "Can you tell me if this is the bus to Alexandria?"

New Shipping Boss?

LEWIS DOUGLAS, early New Deal budget director who broke with the president over the economy issue, is a good bet for war shipping administrator to replace Admiral Emory Land.

Land is also chairman of the Maritime Commission and it is felt that the two jobs are too much for one man to handle. The direction of the loading and routing of cargo ships has been under hot inner circle fire for months and top war chiefs recently reported to the president that this is the sourest spot in the war program.

If Douglas is made shipping boss he will be given control over a tangle he has been trying to unravel as a subordinate for several months.

Early this year the president appointed Douglas as assistant to U. S. Lend-Lease Expediter Averell Harriman in London. To prepare himself for this job, Douglas made a study of the handling of shipping by Land's War Shipping Administration. Douglas' findings were such that the president cancelled the London appointment and assigned him to try to bring some order and efficiency into WSA.

Douglas has been able to effect some improvements, but, not being in control, his efforts have been constantly hampered and obstructed by certain shipping officials holding key positions in WSA.

A Farmer's Diary

'We're Proud'

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW a girl just beyond high school age, scanning a bulletin on the large show window of our hometown newspaper office. Others came and went, but this girl remained, re-reading some items over and over. When she turned to go, her eyes were moist and grief showed on her girlish face.

"Mary, what's wrong?" asked a sympathetic friend. "Did you read that?" and she pointed to the bulletin on the glass.

"Yes—they've finally surrendered. It's too bad."

"I'm wondering—what now—for my brother who's there," said Mary. "My oldest brother, Jack is near Manila. My second brother Clayton, is in Iceland. James—that's my younger brother—is on the sea, we don't know where, and Fred, who's two years older, is training for a pilot, out on the coast."

"Mother and Dad and I are all that's left at home. They're not able to work in the shop anymore—my dad was a molder—but I work, and support them. Mom can do the housework, and Dad manages a garden. He complains about it being hard work and all, but I think it does him good. When the boys were all home, he used to spend his evenings up town. Now he listens to the radio and goes to bed—sleeps sounder than he has for years."

"Oh—we get along. But when mealtime comes, and the table's only half as big as it used to be, it doesn't seem like our house. Their beds are made, and nobody sleeps in 'em. It's so quiet sometimes we just can't hardly stand it."

"I'm proud of one thing, and Mom is too. They all enlisted. They had the chance to get into the kind of service they wanted, that the ceremony will reek with glamour.

It hasn't been announced yet but the navy has hired Steve Hannagan, super-press agent, who is famed for glamorizing Miami Beach, as the publicity mastermind of the Industrial Incentives Section, which has charge of the "E" banner program.

Hannagan will replace James Selva, former publicity man of the National Manufacturers Association, who was brought to the bureau as a $25-a-day "civilian consultant" by his close friend Comdr. Lewis S. Strauss, former Kuhn Loeb and company partner, who is chief of the bureau. Selva departed after it was disclosed that while on the navy payroll he was involved in a campaign against Roosevelt's labor policies.

This activity is now under quiet scrutiny on Capitol Hill, as is a charge that it was the Industrial Incentives Section that secretly furnished Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia much of the material he used in his attempt to scuttle the 40-hour week. Byrd's charges against war plant workers later were repudiated by Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph Bard.

In addition to glamorizing Miami Beach, Hannagan also has exerted his unique talents in behalf of Gene Tunney, Gar Wood, famous motorboat builder and racer, Coca Cola and the Union Pacific railroad.

Note—So successful has been the navy's policy of awarding "E" banners to plants and shipyards for outstanding war production that the army plans to adopt the same practice.

Capitol Notes.

YOUNG Representative Vince Harrington of Iowa is rated by air corps officials as the best informed authority on aeronautics in congress. This fact weighed heavily in the selection of his hometown, Sioux City, as the site for a new army airport.

Charles Pearson, scrappy New Dealer, who is running against Representative Charles Faddis, is charging him with using his congressional frank for unofficial mail. Pearson has written U. S. Comptroller General Warren Lindsay demanding he deduct the postage from Faddis' pay check.

Politics view Representative Lex Green's close shave in the recent Florida primary as putting a big crimp in his 1944 plans to run against New Deal Senator Claude Pepper. Representative Tom Martin of Iowa, who served five years in the army during and after the last war, has a 21-year-old son who has three years service in the army. J. A. Krug, head of WPB's Power Section, has won his long battle with Chairman Leland Olds over who is to be wartime boss of power. On orders of the president, Krug has been given control over the production and distribution of the nation's entire electric power supply.

New Fabrics For Chic Hats

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

This season your hats won't be made of straw, silk or wool. This is the prediction of many fashion experts.

It will be a priorities year, but that doesn't mean that hats won't be as varied and attractive as ever. Though there is less wool for felt, no imported straws, lace or feathers, no silk for flowers, there are plenty of new fabrics.

There is a collection of cocky little numbers crocheted or woven of cotton cord, fine braid, hemp, yarn, ribbon or anything which can remotely be manipulated.

Ginny Simms has selected one of this type. It is a small sailor crocheted of white cotton cord. The fluted brim is double, very stiffly starched, and the edging is crocheted in chartreuse cord. It's held on with a cap of chartreuse crocheted, unstarched. Heaped on the crown are waxen white narcissus with gold hearts and chartreuse stems made of one of the new synthetic fabrics. A matching cluster of flowers is pinned on the dress.

Many Other Materials.
Other materials for hats this spring are cellophane, straw cloth, chenille, net, horsehair and raffia. Among the more conventional fabrics, the tightly woven ones, such as faille and twill, are popular. Dorothy Lovett's striking new chapeau has a decidedly interesting note. Brushed raffia edges the swing brim of a white bagheera hat. The raffia band is cherry red and the mantilla veil is dark blue, so the whole effect is both charming and patriotic.

June Havoc is modeling an excellent example of what can be done with cellophane. Twisted ribbons of shiny black and white cellophane make a giant pompadour crown this hat. The creation itself is little more than subtle drapery in sheer black rayon crepe. This style is particularly smart for late afternoon and dinner wear.

Women Should Not Forget to Keep Smart

It looks as if women aren't so rushed with personal duties and work that they can't go strolling dry goods. That is as it should be. We're going to keep fit, and we're going to look right. It's an ugly world at the moment; looking frumpy is no help to a universe gone haywire.

Let us suppose you have acquired your spring wardrobe. Let us hope that it is smart and practical. Sensible clothes—and they include shoes—are the order of the day. They wear better, stay in style longer, almost invariably have more chic than silly duds.

There they are, in the clothes closet, ready to don.

But what about your spring complexion and your summer coiffure? Isn't it high time to do something about them? Is your complexion winter worn? Complexions get that way for various reasons—not enough exercise, not enough sunshine, too much good chow, late parties, not enough sleep. With every health slip the complexion suffers.

If the balance in the check book permits, you might allow yourself a few facials at the beauty works. If not, get busy every night and give your celestial countenance a grand old creamy wallowing.

Here is a neat system; if you follow it you'll admire the woman in the looking glass next morning. In fact, you will scarcely know her as the woman you saw there the evening before.

Wash the face well with soap and warm water, rinse with warm water, dry gently and spread on a thin cream. Turn on the hot water in the tub so the bathroom will be steamy. Of course you've huddled your hair into your shower cap.

When you get into the bath water don't do a single thing for five minutes. Relax your muscles. Close your eyes. Have a restful, warm soaking. The combination of cream and moist hot air will be working on your complexion. After a rousing body scrubbing with soap and a heavy brush have an alternating cold and hot shower. Nothing like it to start blood streams scooting.

Follow with a friction with a bath tonic, slip on your pajamas, have a session at the dressing table. Remove the cream, apply a heavy massage emollient, give

Patriotism In Rationing Our Foods Today

By BETSY NEWMAN
I'm giving you a date and nut bread recipe, which you can serve for dessert with cream cheese and jam. The recipe makes one large loaf so it should last for two or three meals. If your sugar supply is short, use part honey or use only half the amount of sugar. Remember it's patriotic to live on our ration of foods, so we must plan accordingly.

Today's Menu.

Coffee

Casserole of Meat and Rice.
2 cps. steamed rice
2 cps. finely chopped meat
Salt, pepper
1 egg
1 cp. cracker crumbs
Onion juice, celery salt
Hot water to moisten
Line a slightly greased mold with steamed rice, fill center with cold, finely chopped leftover meat highly seasoned with salt, pepper, celery salt and onion juice. Add cracker crumbs, egg, slightly beaten, and just enough hot water to moisten. Cover meat with rice, cover rice with greased paper to keep out moisture while steaming, and steam 45 minutes. Serve on platter surrounded with tomato sauce.

1 1/2 cups boiling water
3 cps. flour
1 tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
1 tbs. butter

Murder On the Avenue

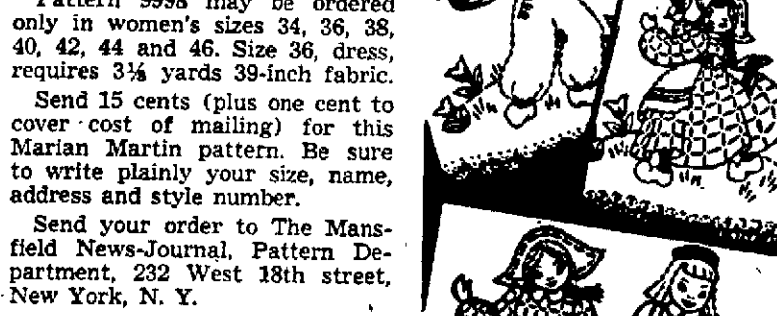

CHAPTER XII
"I sincerely hope so, Miss McCleod. And I'm wondering if you could tell me a little about her past. Did you know her before her marriage to your brother?"
"No; nor I haven't known her since. We never were friends, nor pretended to be. She married Hugh for his money, and as I saw through her, she had no use for me."
"I think she loved her husband, Miss Emmy. What he has told me leads me to believe that."
"You probably know all there is to know about them—except one thing. Did Hugh tell you, since he seems to have been confidential, of the blackmail he is paying, because of her early indiscretions?"
Raynor was a quick thinker. "I'm sure you agree with me," he said, looking at her with apparent understanding, "that that subject would better not be mentioned. I know your wise instincts tell you so, and I am proud to feel that I am honored with your confidence."
By this speech he hoped to confuse her and he did.
"Well," she said, uncertainly, "of course you know best, but in this—"
"Now, my dear Miss Emmy, say no more. We are at one, you and I, and we both know that the less said the better."
At that moment, McCleod returned.
"Chadwick is here," he said. "Emmy, do go back to father; he is asking for you." He looked at his sister curiously, as though surprised to see her smiling amiably.
"Good-bye, Captain Raynor," she said. I shall hope to see you again, some time."
"Assuredly, Miss McCleod," he replied, and she left.
"Mister Chadwick," Foo Chow announced, in his sing-song way. The lawyer came.
After a few commonplace questions, Raynor began to ask questions. He learned that although his partner had been more personally in touch with Chadwick than he had, yet Chadwick knew all about the will and all the circumstances, and as head of the firm, he would give them any information he possessed.
The will, after all, was of slight importance. Alma had left Linda ten thousand dollars, which, while it seemed enormous to the other two, did not seem too generous to Hugh.
"It was my wife's own money," he said. "She had a right to do as she chose with it. And the maid was devoted to her. Alma depended on Linda for more than an ordinary maid's services."
The residuary estate was left to Hugh, with instructions to give Emmy such pieces of jewelry as he saw fit.
Raynor was disappointed that the will gave him no new points, and he asked Chadwick whether he looked after Mrs. McCleod's investments.
"I never knew she had any," the lawyer returned, "but it may be Wade knew of some. I doubt they were of importance."
"I think it would be wise, Mr. Chadwick," Raynor went on, "if you would ask Mr. Ogden Murray about some shares or stocks of an oil well in which he is interested."

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Tuesday, May 13.
A strenuous day with much opposition, conflict and probably belligerent conditions may arise to challenge the emotional balance as well as the ability to rationalize and not "fly off the handle" at little or no provocation. The in-citements to rash, angry, impetuous and quarrelsome behavior may not be considered of minor importance, since the ways seems beset with difficulties and dangers.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of successive difficulties and dangers, especially if tactless, violent, reckless and inconsiderate conduct be allowed to run riot in both the private and

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers) By ADLE GARRISON

"All right, Gus," I called back to the guard my father had detailed to watch especially over me. "Have the car serviced completely, please."

"Okay!" Gus made his invariable answer, and Professor Diswell opened his eyes.

"I believe I have been asleep," he croaked, his lips still swollen from the gag the gangsters had forced upon him. He naturally had not reacted from that experience quickly as Jack, of a younger generation.

The car rolled smoothly to a stop as he spoke, and Gus and Joe went to the gas tank in front of the store, where Mr. Branchman was already servicing the armored car carrying the gangsters.

"I hope you can sleep more comfortably the rest of the way," I told him, and then spoke directly to my cousin.

"Jack, will you please help me down?" I asked.

Plans Diswell's Comfort.
"Of course," he said. But when he had helped me down and we were out of earshot of Professor Diswell, he tightened his grip on my arm.

"What's the big idea?" he asked.

"Simply this," I answered; "Professor Diswell will take suggestions from you, where he would scorn them from a stranger, especially a woman. At one end of that seat where he's sitting now are a pillow and blankets. I noticed that you used the pillow for him."

"Yes, one of the men got it for me," he replied. "He also showed me the blankets, but the old man didn't need them then."

"Of course," I said, "but he will need them if he sleeps going down. If you can get him to lie down with the blankets over him, I promise you he can sleep most comfortably."

"I think I can manage that," he said. "But I don't like to have you standing outside on the road while I get him settled."

"I shan't be standing on the road," I told him. "I'm going into the store for a minute."

"You mean you're going to that other car where the gangsters are. I don't like that, Margaret."

"But unfortunately there is nothing you can do about it," I told him pertly. "Better concentrate on Professor Diswell."

I started toward the store at once, giving him an airy wave of my hand as I went.

As I neared the big armored car of the bandits, Gus left Joe in colloquy with Branchman over the servicing of our car, putting himself between the car and me.

"You going to speak to those fellows, Missis Graham?" he asked anxiously.

"Not unless it is necessary, Gus," I said firmly. "But I am going to look them over before the car goes on."

"They're bad actors," he persisted.

"But," I said, "they can do me no harm, they are so firmly bound."

"They aren't gagged," Gus said, "and I'm afraid they'll say some awful things to you—call you bad names."

"I shall have to risk that," I told him, as I deftly around his inflexible figure and came up to the armored car, which Bill had just driven away from the gas pump.

When I reached the car Jim Watson threw open the door, and the four gangsters who had not been wounded looked at me with ill-concealed fury.

Then the man who had impersonated Professor Diswell, and still looked uncannily like the old savant, gave me a sickly grin and said fawningly:

"Lady, do you want to trade something? If you'll take a message for me, I'll tell you something you ought to know to save your father's life."

Spring Cleaning Now of Utmost Importance

With furniture prices going up and many commodities being taken off the market entirely, spring cleaning this year assumes new and earlier importance. The old urge to refurbish and freshen up with the first crocus is still there. This year new factors enter in, though. Furnishings must be made to last longer. Cleaning becomes a part of patriotic conservation.

The furnishings you now possess may be the only ones you'll have for the duration so you can't give them too much care. Does housecleaning fill you with despair at the amount of work involved? If housecleaning plus conservation seems particularly formidable, the smart thing to do is to put some of the burden on the professional cleaners. Fortunately, there are no priorities on good drycleaning. Even if you can't buy a new chair or new upholstery fabrics the ones you now own will gain a new and longer life.

The way to lighten your load and save as much time as possible for volunteer duties is to go about housecleaning in an executive manner. Arm yourself with a pencil and paper and make a professional inventory. Start with the living room, noting down everything that must be cleaned. Draperies, upholstered pieces, slip-covers, rugs are all obvious candidates for a trip to some good cleaner. The dining room rug will probably show a conspicuously lighter shade in the portion covered by the table. The bedrooms will yield not only floor coverings but blankets, bedspreads, dressing table skirts, boudoir chairs, chaise longue.

The importance of quality cleaning cannot be overestimated. Particularly if you have never before embarked on an all-out cleaning program, you will want to learn the difference between good and indifferent work. There is a great deal more involved in cleaning than most people know and a little elementary knowledge will prove a guide in selecting an establishment to which you can trust your home/furnishings with confidence. Blankets, for instance, must be carded, a process similar to one used in their original manufacture, to restore their deep, fluffy nap. Rugs must have far more than a cursory beating and vacuuming. They must be thoroughly shampooed with an efficient yet harmless soap, and every inch must be scrupulously covered with special rotating brushes. Drying must be achieved under controlled temperature. Down puffs and comfortable demand particularly expert work. The tiniest cut in the silk or rayon covering must be mended, and a highly specialized technique is required to prevent the down or feathers from bunching. Dimensions are important in draperies and curtains. Careful, accurate measurement is absolutely essential. Pillows require special treatment.

These are the fine differences between dependable and questionable cleaning. Good work demands quality materials and skilled labor. Bargain work defeats its own purpose. When something as valuable as your furniture is involved, expert work is the only true economy.

BLACKWOOD AT ITS BEST

NEVER DOES the Blackwood convention show to better advantage than when an opponent has bid a suit in which your hand is blank. You can make a cue-bid in that suit and on a later round call 4-No Trumps to ask your partner what aces he holds in the other three suits, his answer to be followed by 5-No Trumps, which asks him about his kings in those suits. By this means, you can sometimes learn to a certainty that a small slam or grand slam is possible.

Some of the most active facial contortionists are dear creatures, sweet, gentle and kindly. They merely use their faces to accentuate speech. They purse their lips, twist their mouths, roll their eyes. Wonderful that the human face can stand the strain.

All that funny business is unnecessary. One can say the weather is cold without shivering and chattering one's teeth or that the weather is warm without putting on a wilted look and wiping the brow. It's too much play acting. Girls and women who act like that usually do a lot of gesturing with hands and arms. They're not restless companions.

It is a grand idea to live intensely, to be keenly aware of what is going on, to have enthusiasms, to be gay and lively. But one can enjoy all that without making monkey faces and swinging the arms like a windmill, habits that exhaust the energy motors, produce physical fatigue.

The middle-aged woman who shows the world a face that is free of wrinkles is the one who expresses her thoughts and feelings with her eyes, not by distorting facial fibers.

Faces change with the years. It is up to every member of our beauty class to see that their respective countenances do not change for the worse.

When North heard his partner bid hearts, he became immediately slam-minded, and was about ready to bid a small slam, even if the pair had been using only natural bidding. But he also decided that a grand slam should be possible in hearts if South had both of the red kings. This might have been difficult to find out ordinarily, but when West bid 2-Clubs, it became easy for users of the Blackwood convention who really understand it.
North's bid of 3-Clubs, coupled with his next call for 4-No Trumps, informed South that he had no clubs and wanted to know how many aces South had in the other three suits, knowing full well that South must answer with 5-Clubs to show none. Then came the crucial question, "When 5-No Trumps asked South about the kings in the three other suits, South showed two of them with his 6-Hearts response, whereupon the gamble and guess disappeared. West's lead of the club K was ruffed, two trumps dropped the hostile ones, three high diamonds and a diamond ruff set up the fifth diamond for a discard of a second club, and South's remaining two clubs were ruffed, so that the slam was made.

Don't Go Into Those Awful Contortions

In an effort to register animation and to emphasize their remarks some of our nicest girls indulge in facial contortions that are a sore trial to the nervous systems of the onlooker. Among stage and screen stars this practice is known as mugging. If the addicts of the habit could see themselves in action they would reform. If they will look in their mirrors they will find that grimaces are leaving their marks.

Too frequent lifting of the eyebrows to express surprise puts furrows in the forehead. There they are, little railroad tracks running from one side to the other. Drawing the eyebrows together to denote seriousness digs in the frown lines. Clicking the teeth together and pulling in the chin to signify disdain or disapproval will not only grow a second chin—of which no woman has any need—but it will produce a pelvic pouch that will snatch a woman right out of the good looks contingent.

Some of the most active facial contortionists are dear creatures, sweet, gentle and kindly. They merely use their faces to accentuate speech. They purse their lips, twist their mouths, roll their eyes. Wonderful that the human face can stand the strain.

All that funny business is unnecessary. One can say the weather is cold without shivering and chattering one's teeth or that the weather is warm without putting on a wilted look and wiping the brow. Eddie the Mighty Man Murtyn is macing that marble once more, even as in the days of yore with our late lamented Mansfield Braves.

After the break-up of the Michigan State league, where Ed was scheduled to perform this season with Flint, Murtyn caught on with Wausau, Wis., in the Northern league.

And he's stepping right out in the usual Murtyn stride. Last year's Ohio State league home run king just clouded three circuit drives in the first four games this season in the Northern loop.

Rigney Wins One For Boss

Navy Recruit Presents Wife With Victory.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR (Associated Press Sports Writer)

JOHNNY RIGNEY, ace of the Chicago White Sox mound staff, will do his future pitching for Uncle Sam, but before he decided to don the navy blue he had to win one for the boss.

The boss is Mrs. Johnny Rigney, the former Dorothy Cornish, treasurer of the White Sox. And Johnny's present to her in his last major league appearance for the duration of the war was a three-hit pitching job against the Washington Senators in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader.

After winning the first game, 7-1, behind the six-hit pitching of Ted Lyons, the White Sox rallied to overcome a three-run deficit and pull the nightcap out of the fire for Rigney, 4-3.

The double victory didn't get the White Sox out of the American league cellar, but it stretched their winning streak to six straight games and put them within striking distance of seventh place.

Rigney, a 27-year-old right hander, expected to enlist in the navy. He told reporters that yesterday's game was "definitely" his last for the duration.

The New York Yankees saved their lead in the American league by leading an even break with the St. Louis Browns, but the second-place Cleveland Indians sliced the margin to half a game by bumping the Philadelphia Athletics twice.

At St. Louis, the Browns coasted to a 4-2 decision as Eldon Auker limited the world champions to seven hits in the first game.

Atley Donald pitched five-hit ball for the Yanks in the second game and Frank Crosetti's single brought in the run that won it, 3-2.

Jim Bagby and Al Milnar turned in a pair of sparkling four-hitters for the Cleveland Indians, who downed the Athletics, 4-2 and 9-3.

Jimmy Bloodworth's tenth-inning home run gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in a single game at Detroit.

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers hiked their lead from five games to six and a half, sweeping a twin bill with the Chicago Cubs, 8-2 and 4-3 as the Boston Braves lost to the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair with the Philadelphia Phils.

Bucky Walters stole Jim Tobin's thunder at Boston, pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-3 victory over the Braves. Walters yielded only seven blows and blasted a two-run homer off Tobin, who hit three home runs in a row against Chicago last Wednesday. Weather cut the scheduled doubleheader to a single game.

The Philadelphia Phils kept the Pittsburgh Pirates two percentage points behind the second-place Braves by winning the second game, 5-4, after the Pirates had grabbed the first, 7-2.

The New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals divided their double bill to remain deadlocked in fourth place. Carl Hubbell scattered eight hits for a 7-2 decision in the opener, his first triumph of the year, but the Cards came from behind to take the afterpiece, 8-6.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Napoleon, a little corporal, met his Waterloo, but Vic Ghezzi, a big corporal, does not intend to meet any such place when the P. G. A. championships are held at Abasco, N. J., next week.

For a man who has been out of it all since last January—Ghezzi has had but a dozen stiff rounds since he went to Fort Monmouth—the corporal was blasting them plenty in the New Jersey state pro-amateur championships at the Canoe Brook Country club over the week-end. In fact, he and Sergeant Pat Mucci came off with the title.

"I think I am going as well as last year when I won the title," declared Ghezzi, "except for my putting I will try to practice as much as I can this week. If I get my putting touch back I believe I have a chance to repeat."

GALION JAYCEES DROP FIRST GAME

GALION—Galion Jaycees met their first defeat in the Ohio State league Sunday when Foster piled up 5 runs in the first two innings to knock Galion out of first place. The same teams met Wednesday at Galion.

NATIONAL LEAGUE SETS SEASON RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National league had its biggest day of the 1942 baseball season Sunday as a total of 122,205 fans saw Sunday's games.

It was the first Sunday this year the senior circuit has outdrawn the American league, more than doubling the junior loop's attendance of 60,383.

Conn's Father-In-Law Has Reputation as Scrapper

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jimmy Smith, the fighting father-in-law of fighter Billy Conn, earned himself a lasting reputation in the Major leagues as a fearless scrapper in the two-fisted era of the game.

Smith used to defend Conn, too, when the young Irish boxer was just getting started and before he started dating Smith's attractive daughter, Mary Louise.

Even after the two were married and Conn and Smith carried their verbal sparring into public, Smith remained friendly with Conn's family. He attended Billy's mother's funeral at Atlantic City.

But that seems a long time ago, now.

Charleston Takes Two

Bayliss Holds Dayton to Three Scattered Hits.

DAYTON (UPI)—If you're looking for a reason why the Charleston Senators are in front of the Mid-Atlantic league pennant chase, it might be found in their hill work.

Yesterday, for instance, three hurlers allowed only eight hits in two games against Dayton, and the Senators won both, 2-1, 6-3. The second was a seven-inning tilt.

Don Bayliss went the route in the opener and gave up three scattered blows, while Buckeye Walters and Chuck Graves allowed a total of five in the afterpiece.

Second-place Springfield moved right along, too, whipping Erie twice, 4 to 1, and 3 to 2, after absorbing a 17 to 1 drubbing Saturday night.

The Zanesville club climbed into third place with a double triumph over the slipping Canton Terriers. The scores were 7 to 1 and 2 to 0.

STOCK MARKET MAINTAINING STEADY TONE

Group of Issues Even Shows
Fractional Gains; Steel
Scrap Holds Up.

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Stock prices generally maintained a steady tone in today's market proceedings.

Fractional advances were registered for General Motors, Chrysler, Sperry, Western Union, Eastman Kodak, Woolworth and Caterpillar. Tractor Oil a shade lower, General Electric, American and Consolidated Edison, U. S. Steel was unchanged.

Market analysts noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "scrap supply continues at the more satisfactory level of the past several weeks and all consuming districts are receiving enough for the high rate of steel production, though in most cases it is sufficient only for current needs."

Holders of carrier securities were comforted by the estimate of the Association of American Railroads that 68 class 1 roads in April had total operating revenues 48.9 per cent above the like month a year ago.
